Joey Logano wins second race in Gander RV Duel at Daytona

February 14, 2019 at 8:27 pm

A power move on the final lap earned Joey Logano victory in the second race of Thursday night's Gander RV Duel at Daytona International Speedway.

Logano pulled out of line heading into Turn 1 on the white-flag lap and with help from Team Penske teammate Ryan Blaney, was able to pull past Clint Bowyer coming out of Turn 2. Logano will start fourth in Sunday's Daytona 500 (2:30 p.m. ET on FOX, MRN, SiriusXM NASCAR Radio).

"You have the whole race to think about making a move, and we were all out there just waiting," Logano said. "Everyone behind me really wanted to go, and I just knew that I had to wait. The later you can do it, the less the risk if it doesn't work. I got a good run from the 12 (Blaney) behind me and went to the bottom and got a good run.

"Was able to side-draft the 10 (Almirola) and pull him back and just barely get enough to break that plane in front of the 14 and clear him up. From there I was just blocking to the finish. My spotter, TJ (Majors), did a great job feeding me all the information I needed to make a decision."

Bowyer was able to salvage a second-place finish after dominating much of the race, leading 41 of the 60 total circuits. Aric Almirola finished third, followed by Denny Hamlin and Kurt Busch to round out the top-five finishers.

Brendan Gaughan raced his way into the Daytona 500, edging out Joey Gase with a 16th-place finish. Gase finished 19th and will not compete on Sunday.

Alex Bowman, flanking Hendrick Motorsports teammate William Byron on the front row for Sunday's race, led the first 11 laps of the second race after starting on pole. Bowman, like Byron in the first race, elected to protect the No. 88 Chevrolet from potential disaster to ensure his starting spot — barring any mishap in this weekend's practice sessions — finishing 13th.

The next on-track action for the Monster Energy NASCAR Cup Series is Friday's third practice at 1 p.m. ET on FS1.
